SAMMY SAYS...

The verdict is in

Gather Round is a hit!

It was a crazy weekend full of not only on-field entertainment but also endless off-field. The whole region came alive, from the Barossa to the Riverland.

And better still, Adelaide has secured the event for the next three years.

Not everyone is happy about that announcement, but Adelaide truly is the best place for it. It's in the centre of the country so it's easy to get to for all fans, the stadium is a 5 minute walk from the CBD, and there are plenty of regional accommodation options with an easy drive to any stadium.

Add on top of that the fact that every single person involved, from the cashiers at the Adelaide Oval all the way up to the man of the hour Peter Malinauskas, gave 100% for this event. To take it away after one year would be a travesty.

Maybe in the future a rotation between Adelaide, Perth and Sydney (not Victoria they have enough blockbuster games, don't be greedy you guys!) can be looked at. But I have a feeling it will fall flat simply because of the travel issues.

The crowds were the heart of this event, and how good was it for all games to sell out! Yeah, sure the capacity at Norwood and Mount Barker was low, and with the double header fixtures those crowds came with an asterisk, but there's no denying the people turned up.

And given that there was only six months to prepare, things are sure to only get better.

With a whole three years guaranteed there's no doubt planning for next year has already started. But before that we need to have a closer look at what worked and what didn't this year.

So let's start with the good

First up, the Pepsi Max Footy Festival in Elder Park. Between the two big screens, plenty of clinics and the steady stream of appearance from players and coaches, this was the place to be if you couldn't get to the game. Being situated right across the road from the Oval made it easy to get to and at night there's just nothing more beautiful than the lit up Torrens.

But that's not to say everything was perfect. Seating was a little scarce for a full park. The use of deck chairs and bean bags was genius, and a great reward for the people who arrived early, but many others were standing around. There was also no protection for those who were watching the game when that torrential downpour hit on Saturday night. What the solution is I'm unsure. Bring in more tables with umbrellas? Or put sails around the area in front of the screen? Would it be worth bringing in a small temporary stand? These are questions for event planners who I'm sure will come up with a solution.

It was also good to see the Crows and Fremantle have the initiative to come up with special guernseys for the round. But one team got it right and the other got it wrong. Seeing that old Crows logo again out there would have been nice for the fans and even as a Port supporter I have to admit it was quite sharp. Freo's on the other hand was a bit lack-lustre, with the dull V looking more blue than purple. Personally, I'm hoping that all 18 teams get onboard with having a unique guernsey for Gather Round, it all adds to the spectacle.

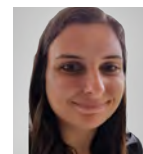

The not so good

While there was an undeniable buzz around the whole city, people choosing to spend their time at Pinky Flat would have been feeling... well a bit flat. The location was originally billed as being the 18+ hang out, but judging by the amount of kids running around there on Saturday afternoon this decision was reversed. Being smaller, the Flat couldn't match Elder Park in terms of having footy clinics to play at, and it instead had... not much really. Many people probably didn't even know it was there, with nothing to make it stand out in amongst the trees.

Planners now have a conundrum on their hands. What to do with this space? My personal opinion would be to copy the blueprint of the Croquet Club from the Fringe, and turn it into the place to be after and between games. Make it an adult's playground, with plenty of Instagrammable features (anyone else remember that cool Combi van?), really deck out the space near the alcohol vans, and put in a dance floor for late night partying. And if it's going to be the 18+ venue, they need to be strict on the 18+ part.

Another thing that surely annoyed the fans who couldn't get tickets was the empty seats at the Saturday and Sunday games. Granted the weather on Saturday would have put a lot of people off sticking around, there's no denying there would have been more than a few who never had intentions of seeing both games.

I really loved being able to see multiple games in a day, but if it's coming at the cost of potentially thousands of fans missing out maybe it's not worth it. Could there be an opt out system so people can indicate if they only want to go to one game?

Samantha Field

SAMMY SAYS...

Or a 3 hour window between games so the crowd can clear out and the game tickets be sold separately? It seems the AFL is planning on having more venues next year so maybe there won't be any double headers anyway and this problem will solve itself. If not though, there needs to be a think about how to get the most fans possible to both of the games.

Samantha Field

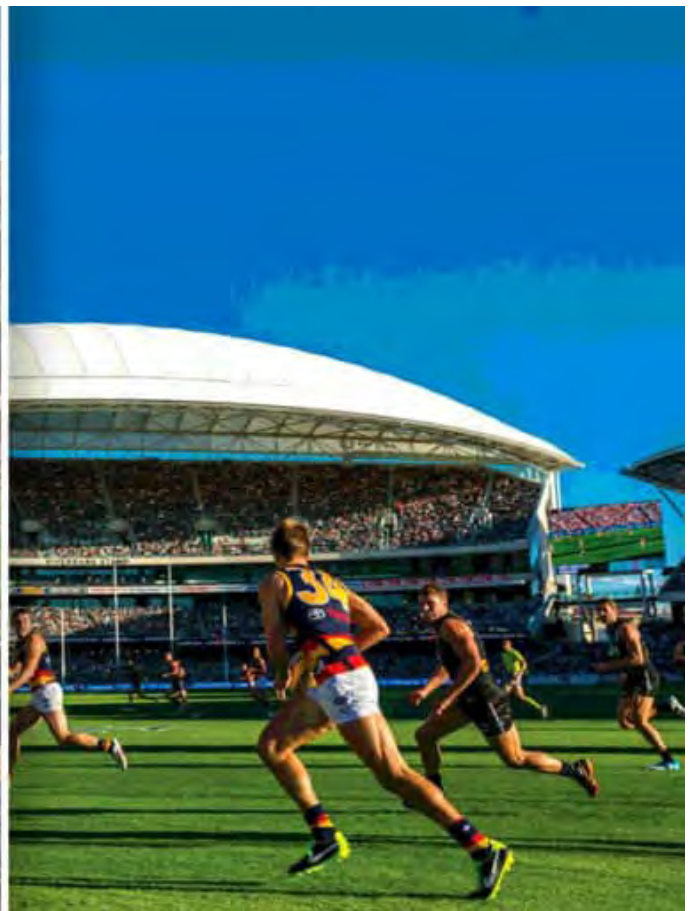

The great!

It goes without saying, the games themselves were as good as one could hope for! Four games were decided by under 15 points, with each game having its own twists and show of skills. With the Fox Footy panel on the ground and on the hill, the pyrotechnics for all teams when running out, and DJs spinning the bangers, almost every game felt like a final at Adelaide Oval.

Norwood Oval with its vintage grand stand was a perfect choice for second fiddle. Some said with a full capacity it was reminiscent of SANFL glory days games. And Mount Barker surprised many of us with just how well that game turned out! With the picturesque Adelaide Hills in the background it was a fun new way to experience a game. Kudos to the ground staff who had that pitch looking as good as any other in the AFL.

But the big winners were all the local businesses. Whether it be hospitality, tourism, or accommodation each and every place smashed it out of the park. Social media is swarming with positive feedback and everyone at games was talking about how they were enjoying their non footy activities. Being a weekend ticket holder I unfortunately had no time to see much of what was going on, but from what I've heard there was not an empty seat in the whole CBD all weekend. Adelaide has come such a long way in the past decade to become a real happening city, and it's so great to hear that everyone was doing their part to really show that off. Go Adelaide!

But as wonderful as the weekend was, football moves fast, and Gather Round is already well and truly in the rear-view mirror. Attention is turning to next round, including the Anzac Day clash which for the first time in over 20 years will see two top four teams go at it. So let's enjoy what the rest of the season has to offer, all the while being quietly eager to see what Gather Round looks like next year.
